A Plea To Bettors and Horse Racing Fans

To those who wager on horse racing, we implore you to reconsider. And ultimately, you hurt all the cards: no more bets, no more races, no more races, no more bets. And — no more separating foals and mums, no more abusing unborn foals, no more confining, no more shipping, no more dragging, no more dipping, no more buying and selling and trading and dumping. No more auctions, no more cell phones, no more transport trucks, no more slaughter. No more pain, no more suffering. No more.

In a landscape that abounds with other gambling options — real sports involving autonomous human beings, casinos, lotteries — here's the time at long last arrived to let the racing horse bet? Yes, the bettor, have within the capacity for mercy. We ask only that you exercise it. Please. For the horses. CourtesyofHorseRacingProng.org
